MOVE BRANDED AS POLITICAL

Legislators Call Davey Food Tax Repeal Plea Slick Trick To Get Votes

WILL STUDY PLAN FIRST

Relief Bill To Be Up for Consideration as Assembly Regathers Wednesday

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., June 16—Quick repeal of a three per cent sales levy on food purchased for the home proposed by Gov. Davey faced today a hostile Republican front.

Frank Whittemore of Akron, senate minority leader termed the proposal to end the tax Sept. 1 as "purely political" and Rep. J. Harry Ashman, Republican of Cincinnati described it as "a slick political trick."

An informal survey of legislative members indicated however that many favored repeal of this portion of Ohio's sales tax law but that they planned a careful study to make sure it would not reduce revenue necessary for relief, schools and political subdivisions which share in funds from the levy.

Wants To Study Facts

If it could be done it would be highly desirable of course, Whittemore added. However I want to look up a few facts about the states need of funds."

Legislators heading toward the capital for a resumption Wednesday of a special session of the general assembly which began last September also faced two other controversial issues—poor relief and unemployment insurance.

House Speaker J. Freer Bittinger indicated that the sales tax repeal proposal would not be taken up until after a new relief bill is decided upon.

The new $6,500,000 relief bill to provide aid for indigent after July 1 found farm interests pitted against welfare workers.

A senate research and fact finding committee is under instructions to report not later than Wednesday on an unemployment insurance bill which has been subject of considerable debate for several months.

No Work, No Eats

Farmers maintained that the proposed bill should apply the old principle that those who do not work shall not eat, while welfare workers blasted at allowable family allowances ranging from $6 to $12 a month as the death warrant of thousands of persons.

Rural members of the legislature told the house finance committee which drew up the bill that many farmers were unable to find men to plant their crops despite the number of able bodied men on the relief rolls of their cities, villages and counties.

A feature of the drastic proposal aimed at relief chiselers was the wide authority it would give the state relief commission to investigate all relief clients.

Persons misrepresenting their financial condition or their ability to work in order to obtain relief or continue on the rolls after obtaining jobs would be liable to $100 fines or six month prison sentences or both.

21 Mail Carriers Make Night Delivery With Virtually No Difficulty

SOME BONDS "GO SEGGING"

Certification of Papers for Payment Starts Tonight at Postoffice and Y...

...A force headed and supported of 21 mail carriers launched in Marion at 7 p. m. and delivered more than 50 packets of World War adjusted service bonds and certificates before 10 o'clock last night—most of them addressed to the hands of the boys who wore the khaki.

...While a few of the bonds were delivered during the daylight hours, it remained for the night carriers to make the actual distribution of the valuable paper, the bonus "boys" began" in several quarters when the last mail was delivered. As Uncle Sam relished off the sum of $2,000,000 in bonds, $1,000,000 in cash and turned to the task of delivering those who preferred cash to the interest bearing bonds, there appeared certain powerful "bond" parties who rendered a polite "No, thank you." Some veterans failed to apply for their bonus, saving the government money, while others turned their share into a fund to aid the hopelessly wounded survivors of the world struggle.

854 Packages Received

A total of 854 packages of bonds and checks have been received in Marion for delivery to veterans living in the city and on the rural routes serviced by the Marion post office. Of that number between 40 and 50 were returned to the office by mail carriers last night—most of them addressed to veterans who are working nights or who found it impossible to be at home when the postman rang. The bonds returned went out on the daytime deliveries today.

It took the 21 carriers who went over their regular routes in the residential and business sections only about three hours to make their deliveries.

Little trouble was experienced by carriers here in identifying bond recipients. If the veteran was not personally acquainted with his postman a member of the family or a neighbor was on hand who did know him. Carriers reported that it was seldom necessary to ring the bell more than once—the waiting veteran was on the alert and was at the door with a smile.

Gets First Bonds

Wilson B. Tway of King avenue was the first former soldier to receive his bonus. Mr. Tway was called out of town on business and put in appearance at the post office bright and early yesterday morning to claim his war compensation. Assistant Postmaster I. E. Cookston said. Several other veterans who were going out of town called for their bonds before they left.

The lads who live on the rural routes slipped one over on the city boys and received their bonds first. Several days ago it was not expected that rural deliveries would be made until today but the bonds arrived in town from Cleveland in time to go out on the country routes yesterday.

Only two squawks were registered last night during the entire bonus delivery. postal officials reported. A woman who served in a branch of the country's military forces refused to emerge from the second floor apartment to sign the

Al Smith Also Reported To Have Made No Plans for Philadelphia Meeting

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 16—Senator Copeland, Democrat of New York said today he intended to take a walk to the National Medical Society convention at Cleveland while the Democratic national convention to which he was elected a delegate is meeting in Philadelphia next week.

"I'm going to the Medical society convention because I think I'll have a better time and do more good there," he said in an interview. "Therefore I'm not going to take a walk to the national Democratic convention but I'm going to walk the other way to the medical society meeting."

Copeland said he had not talked with former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York about any joint move to walk out of the Democratic meeting. According to reports from New York, Smith has made no train reservation for the trip to Philadelphia, although he was elected a delegate at the April primaries.

Bonus Checks Expected To Buy 100 Autos, 50 Homes

Marion Business Men Also Expect Sales of Furniture and Other Home Equipment To Increase

Sale of 100 automobiles 50 homes and truckloads of furniture—these are the principal effects on Marion business activity expected to result from payment of the soldiers bonus.

This was the concensus of Marion business men given in a survey made by The Star today.

In addition, hundreds of smaller purchases will add further to the bonus payment effects on business, merchants said.

Automobile dealers reported approximately 40 cars have been contracted for to date on the strength of the bonus checks. Dealers were unanimous in reporting scores of future prospects who are delaying purchase only until the money is on hand.

Likewise one building and loan company official reported that approximately 240 persons have strongly indicated that purchase of medium and lower priced homes will take up the major portion of their bonus money.

Furniture dealers in general reported a rather slow sale to veterans as yet although a considerable amount of furniture to replace worn out equipment has been sold. Dealers expect however that a fair percentage of the bonus checks undoubtedly will be spent for household goods.

Automobiles purchased by veterans will be in the used car class principally. Some dealers said although one or two said that they have received many inquiries for new cars from veterans.

Realtors said they expect the bonus money to furnish the nucleus for many home purchases with checks being used as down payments on properties.

Prospects that the city's supply of suitable used cars would be drained were seen by one automobile dealer who said that he expected veterans would not (or the better or late model type of used car.

Businessmen generally reported they expect no stimulation of sales to result from bonus payments to veterans.

Miss Agnes Hannegan Stricken Suddenly Following Picnic, Funeral Thursday

Death claimed Miss Agnes Hannegan of 205 North Prospect street one of the oldest employes of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. in years of service today at 2:45 a. m. at the John H. Clark home at 301 Franklin street.

Miss Hannegan was taken ill about 8:15 last night shortly after having eaten a picnic supper on the lawn of the Clark home where Mrs. Gladys Clark Arles was entertaining the Delphian society of members at their annual picnic. She was put to bed and a doctor was called. The attending physician told her friends she suffered from high blood pressure and that a clot had formed in the blood stream aggravated by an attack of acute indigestion. Miss Hannegan said during the supper hour that she had never been in better health but members of the family said she had been in an exhausted and nervous state for the last several days.

Miss Hannegan had the longest record of service of any employe in the commercial department of the telephone company and on May 26 was one of two Marion employes of the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. to receive a 30 year service pin set with a diamond.

She went with the Marion County Telephone Co. in 1902 and was employed over a continuous period of more than 32 years by the company and its successor the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. Miss Hannegan was hired by the Marion County Telephone Co. on Aug. 17,

SCHOOL MERGERS "NOT FORCED," STATE SAYS

Assistant Director of Education Explains Laws at Marion County Consolidation Controversy Following Meeting

...Over the state department of education has been a charge that the move was made by telephone and exerted on the Marion county boards pressure to consolidate rural school districts against their wishes. Such a charge is without foundation in fact, we have no desire to force consolidation.

This statement was made by L. V. Dietrich, assistant to H. L. Rennebohm, state director of education, who was asked about the state's attitude toward consolidation.

Mr. Dietrich said the charges were made in reference to the war to take over control of the Marion county boards. He said that the state department of education at Columbus sent a representative to a meeting in the courthouse here Saturday night at which a speaker whose name was not learned told opponents of the bond mergers that the state was "not pushing them."

Mr. Rennebohm referring The Star to Mr. Dietrich for an explanation of the department's policy, said that as far as he knew the speaker at Saturday's meeting here did not represent the state department of education. Mr. Dietrich likewise said he knew nothing about a speaker having come to Marion but said the speaker's explanation of the state's views were substantially correct.

Mr. Dietrich said in substance that no pressure is being brought to bear as far as the state department is concerned on county boards of education to consolidate rural school districts although consolidations would be desirable in many instances and probably will be effected in future years.

No "Pushing" by State

When asked at our previous statements of the Marion county board of education that the consolidations here are being pushed by the state department and that the state might withhold funds from districts that do not fall in line with the program, Mr. Dietrich said "It is true that the state department of education must approve schools having enrollments of less than 150 pupils before they can get state funds. However this is not to be construed to mean the director will not approve the schools simply because the school districts oppose a consolidation. I do say there are many rural school districts in this state with less than 150 pupils and than districts with more than 150 enrolled. It will be years before all rural districts get their enrollments up to that figure."

Statement by Mills

D. P. Mills county superintendent of schools when asked if he and the county board of education are closely unidentified the state's policy as outlined by Mr. Dietrich said:

"I feel the county board of education has done what it regards as its duty under the school foundation program and that it feels the action follows the general plan of the state program. The consolidations were voted by the county board to promote efficiency and economy in the operation of schools. The board made the changes as it felt the welfare of the pupils would be served. The board has never attempted to force consolidation as it has no desire to do so."

Meanwhile what effect the action of Mr. Dietrich and Mr. Rennebohm will have on the consolidation program here was not known today. It had been anticipated that the board would put its plans into final shape at a meeting with Russell H. Wilhelm of Marion as toastmaster.

WOMAN, MINISTER FLOGGED BY MOB

Attack Reported as Couple Attempt Investigation of Strike Slaying.

By The Associated Press

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 16—A prominent young Memphis woman charged today that she and a Presbyterian minister were flogged last night near Earle, Ark., where they had gone to investigate a rumored slaying of a Negro tenant farmer in a cotton strike.

Miss Willie Mae Blagden, 23 year-old member of a prominent Memphis family, told officers that she and Rev. Claude Williams of Little Rock were beaten by a band of men when they refused to reveal the name of the man they had gone to Earle to interview.

Miss Blagden said she was struck four times across the back and thighs with a heavy leather strap studded with brads and that her companion was lashed 16 times.

After the flogging, she asserted, she was put on a train for Memphis and she did not know what had become of the clergyman identified, by her as a member of the Religion and Labor foundation. She expressed fear that he might be badly hurt.

Daughter Gives Description of Man Who Called To See Father

By The Associated Press

EAST ORANGE, N. J., June 16—Police last night today said that they were making an intensive search for a man possible an invisible armed in connection with the slaying of Daniel McFarlan Moore, 67, landlord of Frame, assistant of Thomas A. Edison.

Essex county prosecutor's detectives and local officers planned to inspect the private papers of the murdered electrical engineer and inventor in the hope of uncovering a clue more substantial than any they had possessed.

Their investigation had been limited to fallen plaster east of the killer's footprint and the charred .32 caliber shells and most important a description of the stranger who was invited away from the Moore home Monday night when he tried to see the inventor while hours before the murder was committed.

Moore's body was found early yesterday sprawled on the lawn behind his apartment house.

Daughter Gives Description

The description of the stranger came from the retired scientist's daughter, Miss Beatrice Moore and it was on this clue that authorities based their hopes for an early solution of the crime. They disclosed that Moore knew the identity of the mysterious man who visited him at home, although he did not reveal his name to his daughter.

Miss Moore told Lieut. Christian William Wiley and James Kilmurry her father simply identified the man as a person he "had talked to three years ago about inventions."

Miss Moore admitted the man, whom she described as handsome and prosperous, who told him that father had refused for the night. Later she said she saw the stranger pacing up and down in front of the house. Alarmed she went to her father's room and found him. Moore went to a window she told police and after studying the powder figure said, "He is a fellow I talked to three years ago about inventions." She said her father did not give the man's name.

Police Visit Plant

That police considered this lead significant was seen in the visit of Detective Joseph Preston of the prosecutor's staff to nearby Harrison where the plants of the General Electric Co. are located.

Police pursued the angle that the slaying may have been the outgrowth of a quarrel over an invention patent. They pointed out that Moore had no known enemies but admitted that some associates might have become jealous of his work, particularly in the field of light and television.

ABANDONED BABE'S IDENTITY UNSOLVED

Child Found at Filling Station To Be Turned Over to Probate Court.

City hospital attendants who today were caring for the abandoned baby boy found yesterday noon in the women's room of the Standard Oil station at Center and Leader streets, reported that its condition was "fairly good." The child, according to physicians who examined it, was judged to be about forty-eight hours old at noon today.

It tipped the hospital scales at seven pounds when it was weighed yesterday and the attending physician said no abnormalities were noticed on its well-developed body. Although it has not been christened, hospital attendants have temporarily designated it as "David," on the official report of its condition.

No clues have been discovered to aid in identification of the child, police said today. It probably will be turned over to probate court authorities today.

Electric Co., Fairfield Engineering Co., Moores & Ross Milk Co., Marion Coca Cola Bottling Co., Marion Steam Shovel Co., Huber Manufacturing Co., and the American Malleable Casting Co.

The reports and methods of avoiding repetition of accidents were discussed. It was decided that the local safety council will not meet in July and August but monthly reports of accidents will be collected by the Chamber of Commerce and copies will be submitted to active members of the council.

ICKES CANCELS U. S. ORDER FOR STEEL

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 16—Secretary Ickes today announced cancellation of a $10,086 contract with the Jones & Laughlin Steel Co. of Pittsburgh because, he said, it had been "found guilty by the national labor relations board of unfair labor practices."

Jones & Laughlin, with three other companies, had submitted identical bids for sheet steel piling in constructing the Imperial dam on the All-American canal in California.

Ickes said the award was cancelled because the labor relations board had notified him of its decision that the company had conducted a campaign of "systematic terror" against organization efforts of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers of North America.

The labor board's suit to enforce an order against the company was denied yesterday by the federal court of appeals at New Orleans.

Interior department officials asserted, however, that Ickes' decision to cancel the contract was reached before the court decision and that he was simply utilizing his discretion in deciding among identical bidders.

MAN GOES TO JAIL FOR BICYCLE THEFT

Rick was taken into custody Friday, and charged with theft of a bicycle from the porch of the Harmon Gilmore residence at 558 North State street. He was picked up by highway patrolmen from the Marion sub-station, who found him riding a bicycle on route 30-S, six miles east of Marion, an hour after it was reported stolen.

GLENWOOD GRA-Y TEAM BEATS OLNEY

The Glenwood Gra-Y softball team took both ends of a double-header when it defeated the Olney Avenue team, 14 to 2 and 7 to 3, at the Marion Steam Shovel field Monday morning. The Glenwood team bunched 13 hits and, assisted by errors of the opposing team, scored 14 runs, while the Olney club scored only two runs on 11 singles, in the first game. The batteries were, E. Brown and F. Hartley for Glenwood, Caldwell and L. Ralston for Olney.

In the second contest, the Olney aggregation held the Glenwood team to seven runs, in spite of 14 hits, but were able to get only three scores out of 10 safe clouts for themselves. Batteries were, L. Tharp and McDaniel for Olney, Craft and F. Hartley for Glenwood. Tony Caprino, Leroy Emery and Victor Aughenbaugh were the umpires.

TAX DEADLOCK MAY BE ENDED

President May Step In To Bring About Adjournment by Saturday.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 16 — A deadlocked tax conference gave rise today to talk on Capitol Hill that President Roosevelt might again discuss the controversial measure with conferees in order to hasten the adjournment gavel.

Indicative of the desire to wind up the seventy-fourth congress before the start of the Democratic national convention next week was the action of house leaders in keeping the chamber in session until after 10:30 last night, but taxes remained a stumbling block.

New Plan Produced

Senate tax bill conferees today produced a new compromise plan for settling the key troubles over corporation taxes, but it met with no immediate favor among house conferees.

Chairman Doughton, Democrat of North Carolina, of the house group, seeking to reconcile differences with the senate, said the senators, who left a morning session early, had submitted a "counter proposal." No details were given out.

The house conferees said they wanted to study it before giving any intimation as to whether they might be inclined to accept.

Doughton said the conferees probably would meet tonight in an overtime attempt to negotiate some sort of compromise to break the deadlock which has gripped them a week and a half and which threatens to delay adjournment of congress past the opening of the Democratic national convention.

Study Other Proposals

Senate-house conferees on the revenue bill yesterday looked into a dozen or more proposals designed to strike a middle road between house provisions calling for a graduated tax up to 42½ per cent on undistributed corporate dividends and the flat 7 per cent in the senate's bill.

Democratic members discussed the subject with the chief executive before he left the capital for his western trip.

"We didn't agree on anything," said Senator King, Democrat of Utah, after he and other senate Democratic conferees went over various tax plans to "see where the revenue would come from."

VETERAN TELEPHONE CO. EMPLOYE DIES

1902, three days before service was begun. For a period of approximately two years before that time she was with the old Central Union Telephone Co., first as an operator and later as an office employe. The Central Union was a part of the Bell system and the offices were on the second floor of the building now occupied by the Marion Federal Savings & Loan association. In 1908 the Central company was absorbed by the Marion County company.

Twelve years after Miss Hannegan entered the employ of the Marion County Telephone Co., the offices and equipment were moved from the second floor of the Masonic temple building to the present building at 107 South Main street.

In 1931 when the Ohio Associated Telephone Co. took over the Marion County Telephone Co., Miss Hannegan became a clerk in the commercial department.

Miss Hannegan was a member of St. Mary Catholic church, the Catholic Ladies of Columbia, the Tuesday Study club and the Delphian society. She had held various offices in the Delphian society, including the presidency, and was a member of the committee in charge of arranging the 1936-37 program for the Tuesday Study club.

She was born in Richwood, O., the daughter of Thomas and Bridget Tracy Hannegan, both natives of Ireland.

Surviving are three sisters, Miss Mayme Hannegan and Mrs. Nell Thompson, both of 205 North Prospect street, and Mrs. T. H. Burke of 1153 East Church street, and one brother, Patrick Hannegan of Wellsburg, W. Va.

The requiem mass will be celebrated Thursday at 9 a. m. at St. Mary Catholic church. Burial will be made in the St. Mary cemetery. Friends may view the body at the home.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Craven funeral home here, with Rev. L. Eugene Rush, pastor of the Trinity M. E. church, in charge. Burial will be made Thursday at Lexington, Ky.

800 GET BONUS BONDS IN MARION IN 3 HOURS

receipt for her bonds, calling to the carrier that she had left orders for the packet to be kept at the general delivery window for her until she called for it today. The bonds were returned and await her at the window.

One veteran complained to the postal officials that he did not get the full amount that his certificate called for. A check-up on his bonds showed that he had borrowed considerable on them and approximately $22 interest had been deducted.

Gets Bonds Promptly

A Prospect veteran, who moved there from Marion recently, lost no time in getting his bonds. The bonds were delivered to the Marion postoffice marked for his old address. Postal officials knew he had moved to Prospect and sent a note to him on the 7 a. m. star route today to call for his bonds. He put in appearance at 9 a. m., two hours later. Sheriff Fred F. Miller was with him to establish his identification should there be any question about that.

Certification of the bonds for payment will begin this evening for those veterans who intend to cash their bonds at once. They are to report at the postoffice or the Y. M. C. A. between 6 and 10 p. m. with their bonds tonight or Wednesday night. Postmaster L. L. Lamborn said the certification procedure probably will be cleared up in two nights. Eight postal employes will be on hand at the postoffice to handle the certification and 24 have been detailed to the Y. M. C. A. Thirty members of local veterans' organizations also will be on duty to assist postal clerks in identification of the bond applicants.

After the certification for payment is made the veteran will receive an interim receipt and his check will be mailed to him in a day or two from the U. S. treasury disbursing office at Cleveland.

Veterans are not required to cash their bonds immediately. They may turn them into cash any time between now and 1945, the year of maturity. The bonds bear three per cent interest, beginning in one year, and if they hold them until maturity the $50 bond will be worth $68. The maximum bonus that is distributed to any one man is $1,575 and the minimum $126.75. The national average has been estimated at $500 a man.

Won't Take Bonus

It was reported that one Marion veteran did not apply for his bonus and did not intend to do so. "I don't figure the government owes me a nickel," he was quoted as saying.

Donald A. Hubart, commander of the American Veterans' association, which claims 13,000 members, announced in New York, The Associated Press said, that between 500 and 600 members had denied to themselves personal use of their bonds but were turning them into the organization's treasury to help in its campaign for more funds for wounded ex-soldiers and war widows. He said the association is definitely opposed to preferential treatment of veterans who were not disabled, but added there was no organized move to refuse the bonus.

New York's Mayor F. H. LaGuardia went without his bonus for service that included action as an aviator on the Italian front. He hadn't even applied for it.

U. S. District Judge Leon Yankwich of Los Angeles said he did not expect to apply. "I have never felt that the nation owed me anything for my war service," he added.

Payment to veterans will be fairly well completed by the end of the week, postal officials said. Veterans cashing their bonds will start receiving their government checks tomorrow, they explained.

A few hitches in the machinery of distribution remained to be ironed out—such as stopping shipments of packages of bonds improperly adressed and straightening out duplicate applications by veterans who feared their original applications had been lost.

MAINE VOTERS PICK LIST OF CANDIDATES

Townsend-Coughlin Backed Men Fare Badly in New England Primary.

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Me., June 16—A Townsend-Coughlin indorsed candidate for the U. S. house of representatives held the Republican nomination in the First congressional district today while other Townsend-approved candidates for the Republican gubernatorial nomination and the U. S. house of representatives were defeated.

The fate of a young Democratic state senator, who had the backing of the National Union for Social Justice, remained in doubt because of the slowness of tabulating the vote.

Townsend and National Union for Social Justice ballots gave James C. Oliver of South Portland the Republican nomination for U. S. representative in the First district over a field of eight other aspirants.

The Townsend-indorsed Bill W. Page of Skowhegan trailed far behind Lewis O. Barrow, secretary of state, for the Republican nomination for governor.

In the Second district Clyde H. Smith of Skowhegan defeated the Rev. J. Clarence Lockemby of Pittsfield, indorsed by Townsendites, for the Republican congressional nomination.

SENATORS BACK LEGION PROBE

Vandenberg and Couzens Favor Federal Investigation of Hooded Order.

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, June 16—Support for a government investigation of Black legion terrorism came today from Michigan's two United States senators.

The conference for the protection of civil rights announced the receipt of word from Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg that he had asked the department of justice for a report on the sufficiency of various state investigations already under way.

Should they prove inadequate, Senator Vandenberg said, he would request intervention by the federal bureau of investigation rather than a congressional inquiry which, he said, might be slow in getting under way.

Senator James Couzens, the conference reported, expressed favor for the resolution of Senator Elmer A. Benson, Farmer-Labor of Minnesota, demanding a congressional inquiry.

In Hamilton, Ont., police investigated the possibility that vandalism in a Catholic church there marked an outbreak of Black legion activity in Canada. Marauders attempting to enter the vault where the blessed sacrament rested, damaged the $25,000 altar and the Rev. Phillip Campbell expressed the belief that the hooded night riders might be responsible.

In Detroit, Dayton Dean, who calmly related from the witness stand a strange story of a blood pact and a Black legion plot to kill a newspaper publisher, faced cross-examination by defense attorneys today.

While that court hearing was in overnight recess, Councilman George Shanley, of suburban Lincoln Park, declared in a council meeting that the Black legion killed George Marchuk, treasurer of a Communist organization, in 1933.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT ACTS TO HALT RIOTS

By The Associated Press

PARIS, June 16—France's Socialist government countered threats of rightist civil war and communistic revolution with vigorous prosecution today.

Its lessening strike worries complicated by armed rightists and "foreign influences," the cabinet invoked two actions:

1. Stringent application of laws dissolving "armed political leagues," directed specifically against the Croix De Feu (Fiery Cross).

2. Indictment and prosecution of extreme leftists on charges of attempting to turn the labor disputes into an economic revolution.

"The Croix De Feu is the army of big capital," charged Premier Leon Blum's newspaper, Le Populaire, "it is armed and preparing for civil war."

Total second installment payments on 1935 income were estimated at $278,953,610 compared with $233,967,894 last year.

The month's receipts are expected to reach about $375,000,000, it was said.

of the Republican platform and said he was "advocating democratic principles" wherever he found them.

Landon and Hamilton attended a dinner given by the Topeka Chamber of Commerce last night for the sizable corps of newspapermen here to cover the governor's activities. Neither made speeches at the "off the record" affair.

Boarding a train at Chicago for Topeka last night with some of the party's key men, the vice presidential nominee was optimistic.

Knox said he would do "whatever I'm ordered," assuming he would "be out on the stump a great deal." He said he had received many telegrams and letters indicating Landon's nomination met with a "striking" response from "the plain, simple, direct people" who were "waiting for someone they could understand and tie to."

Farley Meets Fighter

Referring to Hamilton's reply Sunday night to Democratic Chairman James A. Farley, Knox said, "Farley's discovered he's up against a real fighter."

The sub-committee to whip the campaign strategy into shape included Henry P. Fletcher, retiring national chairman, who said he was planning a trip to Europe immediately after today's conference with Landon. Explaining quickly he was not retiring from politics, he said, "I am going abroad on a journey I postponed for some time but I am tremendously interested in the campaign. I will be available to give such service as I can to Gov. Landon's campaign."

HOLLYWOOD, June 16—Clark Gable is not handsome in the opinion of illustrator James Montgomery Flagg, but he is "supercharged" with sex appeal. Thus Flagg explained why he left Gable off his list of the six handsomest film actors: Gary Cooper, George Brent, Ronald Colman, Robert Taylor, Cary Grant and Francis G. Shields.

FORMER EDISON AID MURDERED AT HOME

beside the body, one only produced a perfect cast. A shoe maker, examining the cast, said the maker of the print was tall and slender and wore a size 11-E shoe.

Moore was killed early Monday by two .22 caliber bullets fired into his head following an argument in the rain with an unknown man on the lawn outside his home.

Mrs. Earle M. Taber, a neighbor, told police she heard voices as though men were quarreling and a moment later heard two shots.

Miss Moore told the unknown visitor her father planned to leave the house early Monday. Moore, rising early to drive to Bethlehem, Pa., to attend a funeral, was killed about 6 o'clock.

The daughter, who lived alone with her father, was graduated from Wellesley college in 1933 and was selected as the most beautiful girl in the class that year. She was not awakened until the police and ambulance arrived.

Associated with Edison

After attending Lehigh university, Moore became associated with the United Edison Manufacturing Co.

He organized the Moore Electrical Co. in 1894 and later the Moore Light Co. He was vice president and general manager of both companies for 18 years, then both concerns were absorbed by General Electric Co.

He was granted his first patent in 1893 and more than 200 before his death. He was a close associate of Dr. E. F. W. Alexanderson in the development of television at Schenectady, going there to develop the Neon lamp used in the television receiver. A company attache said today his work in that direction was invaluable to television success.

Moore was a fellow of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, member and past chairman of the Illuminating Engineering society, and member of the New York Electrical society, American Association for the Advancement of Science, Society of the War of 1812, and Orange Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution.

DROUTH HITS WHEAT CROP IN DAKOTAS

By The Associated Press

BISMARCK, N. D., June 16—Drouth scared spring wheat fields in portions of North and South Dakota today, threatening crop failures for the third successive year.

In North Dakota, leading spring wheat producing state, observers saw in prevailing conditions a repetition of the 1934 drouth. Last year rust ruined many acres of wheat.

Three other states in the spring wheat belt were optimistic. Nebraska termed its crop in "fine shape." Minnesota and Iowa prospects were listed as fair to good.

CONDITION UNCHANGED

The condition of Ora Hunter, Negro, of Cincinnati, who suffered serious injuries in an automobile accident Sunday night on the Delaware road was unchanged today, it was reported at the City hospital. Mr. Hunter is reported to be suffering severely from shock in addition to chest injuries, a fractured collar bone and cuts about the face.

Icy Stratosphere Blamed for Heat Wave by Science

By The Associated Press

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 16—A new source of hot weather which strangely enough, seems to lie in the icy cold stratosphere was reported to the American Association for the Advancement of Science here today.

The heat source is a "blanket" of ozone which appears to reflect back to earth the heat which the earth's surface radiates upward. Ozone is a rare form of oxygen. How it acts as a one-way blanket which lets the sun's heat in but stops the earth's heat from escaping was described by Brian O'Brien of the University of Rochester.

His heat theory, which is new, is one result of the stratosphere flights made by the National Geographic society and the U. S. army air corps.

The stratosphere flights carried instruments which showed quite definitely that above North America a blanket of ozone lies with its center 15 to 20 miles above the earth.

OLSON WINS EASILY IN MINNESOTA RACE

Governor Has Big Lead Over Opponent for Senate

By The Associated Press

ST. PAUL, June 16—Gov. Floyd B. Olson easily clinched the Farmer Labor party's nomination to the United States senate today as returns from yesterday's primary elections increased his huge margin over a lone opponent.

Olson, self-styled "radical" and champion of public ownership, gathered 42,975 votes in 744 of the state's 3,724 precincts to only 2,784 for the comparatively little known Carl Taylor.

Apparently paying little heed to Magnus Johnson's charge of "bossism," the Farmer Laborites also favored U. S. Senator Elmer Benson in the gubernatorial race. Benson receiving 32,642 votes against 11,025 in 750 precincts for Johnson.

One of Olson's foes in the fall election will be Congressman Theodore Christianson, who defeated Mrs. Thomas D. Schall, widow of the former blind senator, for the Republican senatorial nomination.

ZIONCHECK DECLINES TO LEAVE HOSPITAL

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, June 16—Representative Marion A. Zioncheck told reporters today that officials at Gallinger hospital, where he has been under mental examination, were planning to transfer him to the Shepherd-Enoch Pratt hospital at Baltimore, Md.

He agreed to make the trip, but when hospital officials sent five men to escort him from his room he refused to leave "under duress."

Dr. Edgar A. Bocock, hospital superintendent, yesterday prepared a statement which was believed to have contained a report on Zioncheck's mental condition, but it was not released and neither was the congressman.

TUESDAY, - - - - - JUNE 16, 1936

New Meaning.

The general assembly is ready—as ready as it ever will be—to do something about the state's relief problem.

Unfortunately, assemblymen aren't sure what they want to do. They must provide state relief for persons not being cared for by the federal government and they must try to handle the whole business for the latter half of the year with approximately $5,000,000.

The job has been given new meaning by the possibility that at the end of this year or soon after there will be a new federal relief policy which will return the lion's share of administration and a larger part of financial responsibility to the states.

The federal government did not solicit full responsibility for relief. The states were anxious to get rid of as much of the burden as possible; politicians were glad to hand over the hot potato of special taxes to finance relief. The federal government could postpone the evil day by issuing bonds.

The Roosevelt administration discovered when it tried to hand back part of the responsibility to the states that they weren't eager to accept it. They got it anyway. The Republican party now proposes to return all administrative responsibility to the states if it gains control of the government. Financial grants would be made on a basis of need.

There is a vast deal which needs to be done in the way of bolstering up state relief administration before responsibility could be returned to state governments. As the general assembly undertakes to frame and to enact new legislation, its members should remember that they possibly may be building not a temporary thing but the foundation of a permanent structure.

Father Sits Back.

Sunday, June 21, is father's day in the lexicon of special days which Americans must observe to keep in the swing of things.

Father's day, it must be noted, never has taken hold. Compared with mother's day, for instance, it is almost an annual failure.

There must be a good reason for this. Possibly it is because fathers traditionally are unsentimental fellows who frown on special attention, much as they crave it in secret and much as they respond to it when caught by surprise.

There is, for instance, the case of John Landon.

The elder Mr. Landon has every reason to be proud of the attention his son has been getting; undoubtedly he is bursting with pride. He sat through the Thursday sessions of the Republican convention with a smile on his face which advertised his pride to the whole world.

Yet relatively few persons noticed Mr. Landon. Those who attended the convention and were able to see him looked, instead, at Gov. Landon's charming daughter, who sat beside Mr. Landon. The photographers, the interviewers and the radio announcers gave all their attention to the granddaughter, none to the grandfather.

In all probability, Mr. Landon was glad it turned out that way. It would have bothered him to stand in the limelight. It's not sensational when a father is proud of his son—even an 50-year-old father who looks years younger. In a way, that may explain why father's day, which is fundamentally a good idea, never quite gets to be one of the bigger occasions of remembrance. Fathers don't lend themselves to sentimentality and consequently relatively few sons and daughters have learned to consider them as likely subjects for a special occasion.

Nothing Particularly Wrong.

"The new inspection clerk on the $3,000,000 Aberjona sewer construction job, a PWA project, is Robert H. Ickes, son of Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior." So runs a press dispatch from Medford, Mass.

There's nothing particularly wrong about a father's getting his son a job, reasonable persons will insist. Since young Robert was graduated from college last Saturday, he was faced with the problem that confronts millions of other young graduates today. He looked at a topsy turvy world and wondered how he was going to adjust himself to it. Dad supplied the answer when he sent Robert over to officials at the construction job and requested them to give the boy "some hard work to do."

Skeptics will protest, probably, that an inspection job is not very hard work. They might even insist that there are thousands of other college graduates who would be willing to take, and were more deserving of, that job—especially since it is safe to assume Mr. Ickes could support his son while he is looking around for something to do.

Yet it cannot be denied that Robert's education is being furthered. Fresh from the rarefied atmosphere of the campus, he has smacked into the realities of life, of government, in fact. The Aberjona sewer job may be a worthy project, but unless Robert has failed to benefit from his college education his alert mind is certain to get something to think about as he watches government in operation. Satisfyingly enough, he is being paid to learn.

Jelling Process.

Day by day last week huge quantities of ingredients were added to the new Republican political concoction. This week, the jelling process begins. It remains to be seen just how successful the 1936 combination of elements will be.

Observers seem agreed on the probability of a more fortunate combination than anyone believed was possible a few months ago. Those who formerly thought that the Republican candidate didn't have a chance to defeat President Roosevelt aren't so sure now.

Many of them, having watched the remarkable revival of the G.O.P., are beginning to wonder what Democratic strategists are going to do to meet circumstances which are new to them. For the first time, they are facing the disadvantage of being in the defending position.

Gov. Landon and his advisers have wasted no time in announcing their intention of conducting a vigorous campaign. Seasoned political commentators who have observed the ins and outs of the Landon boom which stampeded the Republican convention are saying that Postmaster General Farley will be matching wits this campaign year with opponents as shrewd and as aggressive as he himself is reputed to be.

The underdog complex which handicapped the Republican party during "three long years" is disappearing. The new leadership plainly is sustained by the idea that it can win. The spirit of the thing is infectious. Possibly even the Democratic leadership may be contaminated. Even before the outline of the new Republican party has become definite, it is obvious that there has been a significant and salutary renewal of the two-party system in national politics. At last new deal opponents have been provided with a rallying point.

Now the Work Begins.

Almost unnoticed in the roar of news which echoed from the Cleveland auditorium, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation closed its books last Friday. From now on, no more loans can be made. Instead, it is expected that HOLC will be busy for the next 15 years getting back its $3,000,000,000.

This is not the time to question the validity of the HOLC experiment. It might, though, be a time to wonder just how much of that huge sum of money eventually will be paid back to the federal treasury. In this connection, it will be recalled that late in April reports revealed that one out of every four Ohio beneficiaries under HOLC was lagging behind in his payments.

There is, too, the none too comforting realization that HOLC still will claim a large payroll for operating its 285 offices over the country. The present staff of 16,391 employes represents a gradual decrease from the 1934 peak of 21,000, but it still will take a substantial number of federal dollars to fill 16,391 pay envelopes.

Many persons wish the HOLC well in its new role of collector. They might even gratefully be aware that the plan prevented the foreclosure of many thousands of houses. But their friendly feeling toward HOLC will not stop them from being glad that the end has come to one more vast federal venture into financial fields usually reserved to private citizens.

Glancing Backward

TEN YEARS AGO.

It was Wednesday, June 16, 1926.

Lawrence Saunders Jr., 4, of Lalouretta street, was critically injured when hit by an automobile at Bennett street and Flos avenue.

Six Marion students were graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university in its eighty-second annual commencement. They were Doris Bendley, Dorothy Buckley, Mary Susanna Pennock, Clara L. Roldenbaugh, Howard R. Geer and Rev. Robert M. Morris.

Miss Charlotte Johnson of Marion and Aaron Jones Jr., of Chicago were united in marriage at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. James A. McMurray, on East Center street by Dr. L. L. Strock of Punxsutawney, Pa., former pastor of First Presbyterian church here.

Cincinnati was leading the National league with 31 games won and 24 lost. New York the American league with 41 won and 16 lost, Milwaukee the American association with 31 won and 17 lost.

Mrs. Charles E. Merkel, Mrs. George E. Frank, Mrs. J. Fred Dornbaugh and Mrs. Emma Uhler Voorhees were hostesses at a 6 o'clock dinner at the Merkel home on Mt. Vernon avenue.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

It was Friday, June 16, 1916.

Dr. Bethmann-Hollweg, imperial chancellor of Germany, in an address to the reichstag on the question of peace declared Germany's position had never been as strong since the war began. He declared, however, that Germany was ready to negotiate for peace.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt was reported critically ill at a hotel in New York City.

Rev. William J. Stoy, a United Brethren minister, died at the age of 64 at his home in Caledonia.

Mrs. Daniel Evans entertained a company of women friends at her home on St. James street as a courtesy to her niece, Miss Hazel Wells of Delaware, whose marriage to R. R. Brichard of Delaware was to take place Tuesday, June 27.

Reduce At 40 If You Hope To Live Long

Brisbane Cites G. K. Chesterton as Example of Needless Strain Put on Heart by Overweight.

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

GILBERT K. CHESTERTON, dead at 62, weighed more than two hundred and fifty pounds. As every doctor will surmise, he died of heart disease. His weight explains the unnecessarily early death. A pump breaks down if you overwork it; a 62-year-old heart breaks down if you compel it to supply with blood—food, drink, oxygen—too many billions of cells.

Every cell in the body must have, from a laboring heart, its supply of food and oxygen, pumped every second.

The brain, alone, contains thirty thousand million separate cells, according to Dr. Carrel. In his 100 surplus pounds, Chesterton carried scores of billions of useless cells, each making an unnecessary demand on the heart.

Do not let yourself remain fat after 40 if you would live to be old. To become thin and stay thin requires some effort of the will, often more disagreeable than dying.

At one of the ultra-radical workers' meetings in France, the red flag displayed and the communist "International" hymn sung there was radical and determined talk. Monsieur Thorez told the meeting the factories of France would soon belong to the workers.

If the plan is sent through some workers would discover that it takes more than a red flag and a hymn to run a factory and make it pay; if factories did not pay there would be no payrolls. Brains count as well as hands. The eyes carry no load, but they direct the feet and hands.

All mothers will be interested to learn that the five little Dionne girls are due to have a new brother or sister, maybe two or three, who knows?

When one of his marshals reported a spectacular exploit to Napoleon the latter would say, "Very good. What did you do the next day?"

Madame Dionne could answer that question satisfactorily.

A wagon drove up to a Newark house, sent by the Essex County Humane society; the attendant proceeded to put a mother cat and three kittens "on board." A crowd watched the mother cat fight the "humane society" desperately for two hours, before she was forced, with her kittens, into a compartment in the rear of the wagon.

The crowd, sympathizing with the mother, "hoped she and the kittens would find a good home," but it was not to be.

As the wagon started, carbon monoxide gas was turned on in the airtight compartment; mother and kittens were soon dead. The message to the humane society was, "Please come and kill a cat and her kittens."

That fight of a humble mother protecting her children from death seems small news for a big newspaper, but it may be as important, in Gabriel's diary, as Wellington's fight at Waterloo.

Tell your little boy and girl to include in their prayers the following:

"And please, Lord, do not send us any more wars."

Uncle Sam began yesterday delivering hundreds of millions of bonus bond dollars to 3,518,000 veterans of the big war—many veterans and a big bonus, for a war in which we were not concerned until foolishness pushed us in.

It was Uncle Sam's biggest pay day; he sent out 28,094,695 separate bonds, plus the usual fortnightly pay checks to millions of regular, and emergency, government workers.

Two million six hundred and seventy thousand five hundred and fourteen envelopes were delivered to as many veterans in the afternoon, containing on an average $550 each. The veterans are entitled to that money; the war cost many of them more than they will get, and it was promised them. But, do not forget about the prayer.

Yesterday, with various payments, the national debt amounted to about thirty-four thousand million dollars. Before we went into the big war the national debt was one thousand million dollars. War is really not profitable, especially when you foolishly lend to nations in Europe that forget about paying.

Russian sovietism came quickly, and might go quickly; signs of a breakdown are seen already. Those that do more and better work get special rewards; engineers, chemists, scientists occupy fine apartments compared with those of ordinary workmen. That is hardly "straight communism." Now Russia will have a constitution and house of parliament, important steps in the direction of conservatism.

Russia has been digging out much gold. Is getting rich; when men get rich they become conservative. Stalin wears a workman's smock; his successor as ruler of Russia will probably wear a crimson cloak, lined with ermine or black sable, and perhaps a metal helmet with a spike on top. Human nature changes slowly.

Some citizens, told that the world owes them a living, food, rent, pocket money included, take it seriously.

At Montville, N. J., a gentleman, 38, with wife and young children, declined indignantly to take a job on the highway, saying: "I want relief; they told me any one could have relief who wanted it, and I want relief."

In addition to the job on the road he was offered food orders for his family, but declined. On his declaration that he would rather "rot in jail" than take the job offered, he was put in jail to try it for thirty days. Others feel the same way about work.

The best book on Shakespeare was written by George Brandes, a Jewish student, born in Denmark. If you read that book, called "William Shakespeare: A Critical Study," published by Macmillan, you will know, concerning Shakespeare, nearly all that is known.

Not to know him is to be on the level of the Galapagos turtle, only lower, because the turtle cannot read.

Brandes amusingly rips to pieces the ignorant statement that Shakespeare's works were written to Bacon. To say that proves that you haven't read Shakespeare or Bacon with any intelligence.

Bacon edited every line carefully, wrote his most important work in Latin, because he thought the English language would not last.

Shakespeare never read a proof, thought little of his fame. When he died at 52, the age at which Napoleon died, his wife, who could not read, threw away all his papers, or sold them for waste. No one knows what was lost then. But for two of his actors, thirteen of his plays would have been lost forever.

Behind the News

Men and Affairs Under The Washington Spotlight.

BY PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 16—Ordinarily a Democratic chairman smiles off a Republican convention with a statement, a couple of paragraphs in length, containing a few unimportant but slurring remarks. The Republican chairman handles the Democratic convention two weeks later in the same small way. It is an old American custom. However, this year, Chairman Farley chose to issue about 1,000 sharp words, hitting hard at the Republican rally with something more than a laugh.

An equally invariable rule of political strategy likewise has always caused schemers on both sides to hold back their important orators until along about September. But this year the Democratic Borah, Senator George Norris of Nebraska, was rushed to a microphone 48 hours after the Republicans adjourned.

Not from those signs alone but from other inner preparations, it is evident that this campaign is not going to be like any seen before. New rules apparently are going to be made by both sides as they go along.

Scheming

The men who are running the Democratic campaign are sold on the strategy of delivering blow for blow with their adversaries from the start. They started getting excited about two months ago. At that time they started expanding their speaking and publicity setups. Now, a week before their convention they are about as far along as they usually are by the middle of the campaign.

The author of this haste is the justly famous strategist, Mr. Charles Michelson. He has insisted on it, contrary to the advice of some other excellent new deal schemers. (Michelson writes the Farley statements, which are stronger than anything else the new deal puts out).

What Mr. Michelson probably has figured out is that the Republican scheme organization must now start again from the beginning, that its setup cannot be functioning full blast within 30 to 60 days, and that, in the meantime, he will have a big edge.

Offset No. 1

Nearly everyone in Washington is now writing at least one suggested plank for the Democratic platform. Most of these planks will wind up as kindling wood in the White House cellar. However, there is one which will not be used to start White House fires next fall. This is State Secretary Hull's. He has laid aside the cares of state lately to compose the answer to Senator Borah's foreign relations plank.

Those who have been looking over his shoulder say his plank is not a plank, but an objet d'art.

Its primary pledge is to keep the United States out of war. It points with pride to the diplomatic juggling through which we remained friendly to the League, Italy and Ethiopia, and says the new deal has brought a clearer definition of the rights and duties of neutrals).

A second Hull pledge forecasts "the end of economic warfare" and "the restoration of world trade" through a broadening of reciprocal trade agreements. A third one pats President Roosevelt on the back for developing closer economic and political unity among the nations of the Americas.

The foreign relations plank is about the only one to which they can add "look to the record," and they intend to do it. They do not intend, however, to mention the World Court, and hope no one at Philadelphia next week will try it.

Preparations

Britain is quietly readjusting the life-line of her empire through the Mediterranean. She has just about lost interest in that largest inland sea as her gateway to the east. At least she realizes it is no longer a safe gateway. In view of the advent of the airplane and the power of Italy's air armada.

So you will soon hear that Britain is developing harbor defenses at Cape Town. British ships will take that long way around to India when the next European war breaks out. British guns at Gibraltar and the Suez will close the Mediterranean.

Orders

American Federation of Labor folks have hit upon a new way of getting action of congress. The old method of having their people out in the country wire in to congressmen takes too long. Also it is expensive. So when the Walsh bill was up in the house judiciary committee, all members received just one wire each, and not from their constituents, but direct from President Green of the A. F. of L.

This wire said the committee was going to meet the next day on the Walsh bill, having failed to get a quorum the day before. The message then concluded:

"Your absence from this meeting will be construed as opposition and as being unfriendly to labor. Our representative will be present at tomorrow's meeting. Do not fail us. Be present."

The bill was reported out two days after the telegram was sent. Only six congressmen were not recorded in the secret committee vote. Mr. Green's men were at the door counting heads.

NOTE—Some of the congressmen are complaining that they do not like to be ordered around this way—but they attended the meeting just the same.

New York Notes

O. O. McIntyre's Diary of Fact, Fancy and Folks.

NEW YORK, June 16.—Writers, especially newspapermen, are reputedly the heaviest users of tobacco of all sedentary workers. Leniency toward smoking on duty in most editorial rooms contributes largely to the addiction. Frank Munsey was among the few publishers who forbade it.

The only all-around newspaperman I ever heard about who has never used tobacco is William Allen White. The most inveterate cigaret smoker among the editors was Ray Long. It was an office boy's duty to empty a derby-sized bowl of stubs from his desk twice a day. But Long took only a puff or so from each.

Many newspapermen who turn to magazine writing drop the cigaret for the pipe, and when they do they are scarcely ever without one. Chewing the weed was in high favor with copy readers 20 years ago, but that use of it is now almost abandoned.

I once knew a city editor who invariably lighted a cigaret before answering the almost incessant ring of his telephone. Many of the crack reporters believe it impossible to turn out a bang-up story without indulging what is known as chain smoking. Northcliffe called it The Great Nicotine Nag!

Edward J. O'Brien sets himself up as a sort of supreme authority of the American short story and each year compiles a volume called "The Best Short Stories of (whatever year it is.)" Naturally he is the target for hoots and many deserved. But one thing is noticeable. The stories that have the greatest appeal for him are in the little-heard-of feuilletons that struggle so hopelessly for expression. And are almost invariably without plot.

Broadway hears the famous red-haired Ziegfeld show girl, Jessie Reed, is now acting as hostess in a Chicago night club. Ann Pennington, another charmer of that era, has been at another Windy City haunt. There are no Jessie Reeds or Ann Penningtons in the chorine galaxy today. Miss Reed never spoke a line, yet she filled front rows and increased receipts of the florists nightly. Miss Pennington, nimble enough as a dancer, was known however for her dimpled knees. So far as I know the Rialto hasn't an outstanding chorus girl, the type known by name and pointed out wherever she appears. Like Dolores.

Ziegfeld was indeed the one and only glorifier. He knew how to make his ladies of the ensemble talked about as well as himself. His power for publicity did not follow him to the grave. Today the Ziegfeld name overshadows the entire list of Rialto producers. Three years after his passing the film of his life was showing all over the land, a Ziegfeld Follies was playing at the Winter Garden and a Ziegfeld show on the air. There was one week on Broadway when a stroller counted the Ziegfeld name 32 times from the Circle to Herald Square in lights, on billboards and window displays. If life survives the body and there is any consciousness of what is going on across the gulf it's certain the vainglorious Ziegfeld is compensated for those last despairing years when the Broadway he so beglamoured was trying with shameless indifference to "lay him out like a rug."

Sentimentalists would like to see the scene of Ziegfeld's major triumphs in a similar comeback. That is the venerable New Amsterdam theater—New York's "Old Vic"—which also housed the Frolic Roof. For several seasons now it has been mostly dark and the West 43d street block in which it is situated has become a strip of cheap-john stores, strip burlesque shows and other decadences of a street turned tarantara.

MAN CAN NOW TALK WITH GOD

MOSCOW, IDAHO.—"A new and revolutionary religious teaching based entirely on the misunderstood sayings of the Galilean Carpenter, and designed to show how we may find, understand and use the same identical power which Jesus used in performing His so-called Miracles," is attracting world wide attention to its founder, Dr. Frank B. Robinson, noted teacher, author and lecturer.

"Psychiana," this new psychological religion, believes and teaches that it is today possible for every normal human being, understanding spiritual law as Christ understood it, "to duplicate every work that the Carpenter of Galilee ever did"—It believes and teaches that when He said, "the things that I do shall ye do also." He meant what He said and meant it literally to all mankind, through all the ages.

Dr Robinson has prepared a 6000 word treatise on "Psychiana," in which he tells about his long search for the Truth, how he finally came to the full realization of an Unseen Power or force "so dynamic in itself that all other powers and forces fade into insignificance beside it"—how he learned to commune directly with the Living God using this mighty, never-failing power to demonstrate health, happiness and financial success. It tells how any normal being may find and use it as Jesus did. He is now offering this treatise free to every reader of this paper who writes him.

If you want to read this most interesting, revolutionary and fascinating story of the discovery of 'great Truth,' just send your name and address to Dr Frank B Robinson, 436 6th Street Moscow Idaho. It will be sent free and postpaid without cost or obligation. Write the Doctor today—Copyright 1935, Dr. Frank B Robinson. Advertisement.

MURDER TONIGHT
BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: It is the eighteenth ...-century in a little sussex village. The village miser has some ...hing in his money, fractal as always, that someone has robbed him. Dale Shipley has bought a horse from a crooked gipsy. The local constable has surveyed his domain; the store keeper and his wife worry about the miser and his power over them. The rector hates the miser, and goes out of his way to avoid him. In fact, life goes on.

CHAPTER FOUR

ST. LEONARD'S clock chimed three measured times and its sound traveled far over the frosty air. Dale Shipley came downstairs in a hurry, yet he seemed to be in deliberate mood as he drew on his overcoat in the little hall. He glanced at his wrist watch—a quarter to seven. "Mrs. Somers," he called.

His faithful factotum presented a cheerful ruddy face from the kitchen regions.

"I'm going over to dinner with Captain Reeves," Dale announced.

"Yessir," Mrs. Somers beamed.

"I'm walking as it's a fine night," Dale amplified, "so I'm giving myself plenty of time."

Dale Shipley lived by himself at Fielden Cottage and a little more than a mile away by road, less if one took the field paths, stood Ferney House where he was bidden to dine.

Ferney House at a quarter to seven knew none of the peace and quiet of Fielden Cottage. Captain and Mrs. Reeves were two of the most popular people in the district and they did a considerable amount of entertaining, but somehow practice never brought Nellie Reeves anywhere nearer to perfection, and on a day when people were expected to dinner a tense atmosphere reigned in the place almost from breakfast time.

On this particular occasion matters were complicated by the fact that there was a visitor staying in the house—Lois Everest, a friend of Nellie Reeves, down for the hunting, a polished creature from London who at a quarter to seven precisely was doing her heroic best to bathe in less than six inches of hot water and shouting out dutiful and unconvincing assurances through the bathroom door that she liked it.

Despite the inauspicious nature of these preparations everything miraculously came right in the end, and by twenty past seven when the first guest was announced she was shown in to a collected host and hostess sitting in a charming drawing room.

And the drawing room of Ferney House was really charming. Nancy Featherstone knew the room of old and had always loved its odd shape, its great open fireplace and its heavy black oak beams.

The instant she entered the room her heart fell. He was not there. She was not particularly fond if the Reeves, and had accepted their invitation solely because she hoped that a certain person would be there. And he was not. It would have been physically impossible for her, even in the most casual way, to frame his name and ask whether he was to come or not. She would have to wait now and hope. And at the age of forty Nancy Featherstone was getting tired of waiting and hoping.

"Miss Everest — Miss Featherstone."

She was being introduced to someone, an ordeal which always made her feel awkward.

"How d'you do?"

Just like the Reeves, she reflected, to spring somebody really smart from London on her without warning. A backless frock and blood red nails, the sort of things he would fall for straight away, of course.

"Doctor Chamber 'm."

Everybody smiled at the entrance of Sydney Chambers into the room. He was short and looked comically schoolboyish in his tight-fitting, out-of-date dinner suit. Tubby is the exact word to describe his figure and his laughing face and his happy staccato voice.

He visited Ferney House as often as he decently could. "Dine where there's plenty of money," was his motto, "then you get good food and good wine, and you'll do your stomach no harm."

"A glass of sherry, Doctor?"

"Thanks."

Nellie Reeves busied herself with the sherry decanter and the two small dishes of salted almonds, which had mysteriously turned up, when all hope had been abandoned, in the cook's bedroom.

With the wine talk began to flow more easily, and indeed conversation was never very difficult where Sydney Chambers was present. Horse and hound, hound and horse: the talk turned as naturally that way as in Chelsea it might have turned to palette and pen, or in Mayfair to personalities.

Nancy Featherstone could talk hunting as well as anyone; in fact she was summed up in Lois Everest's brilliant account of the evening to a London friend by the cruel description, "My dear, there was one woman there, in a disastrous chiffon affair, who practically was a horse," but for once Nancy's heart was not much in the talk and her eyes kept traveling to the gilded clock on the mantelshelf.

Lois Everest thought the woman who was practically a horse dull; but then God had seen fit to give Lois Everest a lovely skin and a beautiful face. Men were always anxious to talk to her.

Presently Doctor Chambers whose eye for a pretty girl was as discriminating at fifty-five as it ever had been, came to the rescue of Lois and Nancy Featherstone was left to her apprehensive wonderings undisturbed.

"Were you hunting today?" the doctor asked.

"Yes. Gorgeous, wasn't it?"

"I didn't go. Busy."

"Too bad."

"Which way did they go?"

"My good man, don't ask me. I don't know this country from Peckham Rye."

"And don't you know Peckham Rye?"

"Is there such a place?"

"Oh, rather. I lived there for four years, my first practice."

"My God—what do people do there?"

"Oh, they live and die and have babies; and love and hate and sneer at one another, just like anywhere else, you know," the doctor said quietly.

"What are you two talking about over there?" their hostess called out.

"I'm being told off for being a snob," Lois laughed.

"Serves you right," came the unequivocal answer. "Doctor, have another glass of sherry."

"Thanks, I will. Which way did the hunt go this afternoon, Reeves?"

"Don't know. I wasn't out."

"Not out? I saw you go past my place this morning."

"Not out this afternoon, I mean. I came home just after lunch."

And tomorrow murder drops into this cheerful gathering.

The Stars Say--

For Wednesday, June 15

A VERY ACTIVE and interesting day is forecast from the predominant lunar and mutual aspects of the planets. While there may be very lively business conditions, all pertaining to writings, advertising, publishing and promotions are under particularly auspicious rulership. Push in this direction. There may be a sudden turn or anxiety in connection with an elderly woman.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively year, with some unusual piece of news affecting the interests. Business and all pertaining to writings, publishing, publicity and promotion should thrive, probably causing travel, removal or change. Scientific and experimental things flourish. The loss of an elderly woman may cause sorrow.

A child born on this day may be versatile and capable in out-of-the-ordinary lines, with much talent in literature or science. His extreme cleverness may call for early supervision and direction.

Notable nativity: John Wesley, Methodist.

ATTENDS SHOE MEETING

Officers of the Ohio Shoe Retailers association were elected today in closing sessions of the annual convention at Cincinnati, according to an Associated Press dispatch. Frank Dietz, manager of the shoe department of the Uhler-Phillips Co. here, attended Sunday sessions of the convention. New officers are headed by Edward Horn of Cincinnati. The convention voted to return to Cincinnati for the 1937 meeting.

Married Comrades

BY ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Is Surprised at Brixton's Change of Plans.

"I NEVER HEARD such nonsense in my life," Dicky exploded as I told him the argument I had used with Samuel Brixton—that his family would rather starve than use insurance money coming because the husband and father had taken himself out of the world. "Do you mean that—"

"Hush!" I said imperatively, my eyes fixed upon the drug store door. "Whatever you may think of the argument, it worked."

"What d'ye mean, it worked?" my husband demanded excitedly. "Do you mean he's given up the idea of going out of the world under his own power?"

"I mean exactly that," I said. "I don't know what he means to do—he's pretty well bewildered and despairing, I fancy, but at least he's going to try to hold a few days longer, he says. He went in to telephone Miss Marshall."

Dicky eyed me intently, and I saw admiration mingled with bewilderment in his eyes. Then he bowed from the waist, clicking his heels in the most approved fashion.

Madge Is Lauded

"I certainly have to slip it to you, old girl," he said. "I don't know how you managed it, but you evidently turned the trick. But, poor devil, have you considered that if he goes on too long without doing the act, his insurance policies will lapse, and then where will they all be?"

"Where thousands of other families just as worthy have found themselves, down to bed rock. Many have found their way up again—but together—not with one of them in a grave."

I spoke hotly, and Dicky gave me a queer glance.

"I believe you mean that," he said with a queer intonation in his voice. "Which proves my frequent contention," he went on, "that women are the queerest creatures on the face of the earth."

"Except men," I supplemented. "But I just want you to remember one thing that I mean for myself, every word I have said for Helena, so never, never get ideas in your head."

"I'm not apt to, after that spiel!" Dicky wiped his forehead. "Whew! That would be a fine note—a poor devil thinking that even if he had failed, he need not leave his family destitute, and then to have a fool wife upset his plans for an idiotic sentiment—"

Brixton Returns

"Hush," I whispered. "He's coming out."

Samuel Brixton was indeed emerging from the door of the drug store, and whether because of my caution, or because of the deflation of his hopes which that caution had unwittingly caused, his appearance was almost as dejected, if less dazed, than it had been when we first had seen him in the garage. But Dicky was cheerily gibing.

"If you people will stop for ice cream sodas," he said, "you must expect to have other people catch up to you."

"Dicky! we didn't!" I protested, playing up.

"It doesn't matter whether you did or not," he retorted airily. "I'm going to introduce my innards to one pronto. I don't want to get up to New Haven before you do."

"Then you'd better dawdle over soda," I said, "for I'm not going very fast. I want to talk—"

Trip Is Resumed

"Then for the love of Mike, drive slowly!" Dicky exclaimed. "Brixton, I'm depending on you to keep an eye on her. Ordinarily, she's a good driver, but when a yen for conversation descends upon her, she's just as likely to try to hurdle a railroad train or a traffic cop."

Samuel Brixton smiled wanly.

"I haven't noticed any such tendency," he said, "but I'll keep an eye on her."

"See that you do!" Dicky retorted as he finished unlocking the car for me and helped me to the driver's seat. And then he was going into the drug store, and I was again driving Samuel Brixton down the highway toward New Haven.

"Will you be offended if I ask you a rather impertinent question?" Mr. Brixton asked when we had gone a mile upon our way.

"Indeed, no. Ask me anything you wish," I countered.

"It's simply this," he said. "This—this financial aid of which you were speaking, is it dependent at all upon your husband's consent—is it money over which he has any control?"

Proper Breathing.

BY MEANS of the respiratory system or "breathing apparatus," as it is more commonly called, it is possible to take from the atmosphere those substances that are essential to the maintenance of life. I fear that few persons are familiar with the importance of the breathing organs and, in consequence, abuse them.

The oxygen we get in breathing purifies the blood and furnishes nutrition to the tissues of the body. When we exhale we rid ourselves of carbon dioxide and other waste products.

The respiratory system is divided into two parts, the "upper respiratory tract" and the "lower respiratory tract." The upper includes the nose and throat; the lower tract is made up of the voice-box, or larynx, the trachea, or windpipe, and the bronchial tubes which lead to the lungs.

The air you breathe passes through the nose where it is filtered and cleansed by the fine hairs of the nostril. The nose has a moist lining, the tissues being fed by the abundant blood supply. This warms the inhaled air and prevents chilling of the delicate membranes of the lungs.

The person who most of the time breathes through his mouth does not benefit as he should. He loses all the advantages of having the air pass through the nose. This is one of the reasons that most "mouth breathers" are subject to colds and coughs.

Children who breathe through the mouth do not make the necessary progress in growth and development. They lack the full supply of oxygen required for health.

You see how important are all the parts of the respiratory system. You cannot afford to neglect it or take chances of its infection. If you are a frequent victim of colds, nasal sinusitis, sore throat, tonsilitis and other disorders of the upper respiratory tract, it is best to consult with your physician. Neglect of these disturbances will lead to a gradual lowering of the resistance of the lower respiratory tract. Then there is trouble.

Proper breathing is essential to good health. Disturbances of the breathing apparatus should never be neglected.

Electrolux ELECTROLUX THE SERVEL Gas Refrigerator (IN THE WALL)

Housewives Say This About Gas Refrigeration

I prefer the Electrolux to any other refrigerator because of its noiseless and economical operation. It is clean and safe, its cost is low and time will not impair its efficiency and bring repair bills.
MARY F. McKEE, 138 Garden St.

Our Electrolux has been in constant use for more than two years and the operating cost has never exceeded fifty cents a month. Besides doing all an electric refrigerator can do, it runs without noise and we consider it the best refrigerator sold.
MRS. HOMER T. LITTLE, 627 N. Main St.

I received my Electrolux for Christmas last year and am very much satisfied with the cost of operation. We replaced an Electric refrigerator with our Electrolux and we think the Electrolux much the nicest for it is silent and operates for about one-fourth the cost.
MRS. ANNA ELICKER, 132 W. Columbia St.

My Electrolux is more than satisfactory in every way. It's perfect.
MRS. FRANK R. MANN, 244 S. Vine St.

THE above statements are typical of the many, many praises for gas refrigeration which come to us from the Electrolux owners in this community. You, too, will appreciate the safety and silence of gas refrigeration — the absence of any moving parts to wear out — the reserve cold for hot weather — and the unusually low operating cost, averaging less than two cents a day. You can own an Electrolux for as little as $157 and liberal terms are available for only 5 per cent carrying charge. Cleveland Indians Face Prospects Of Team Shakeup

PRESIDENT BRADLEY THREATENS CHANGES; O'NEILL NOT BLAMED

Trosky Shelved by Shin Injury; Bruce Campbell Back in Lineup.

By The Associated Press

While the National league seems to be pretty well resigned to a two-club race with the Cardinals and Cubs in the leading roles, and with the Giants and Pirates acting as dangerous pursuers, the clubs in the American outfit are taking desperate steps to keep their contest a close one.

Even though the ability of the Yankees to stay in front is doubted and the Red Sox haven't performed up to expectations, the efforts, especially at Cleveland, are becoming rather frantic. Always a tough spot for managers and players who couldn't produce, the lake-front city is on the verge of another shakeup unless the Indians begin to improve their position. They now are in fourth place, nine games behind the Yankees and trailing the world-champion Tigers by a half game.

As they returned home from a painful eastern tour last night, President Alva Bradley threatened some "radical changes" unless a change for the better was made. That apparently didn't concern Manager Steve O'Neill, for C. C. Slapnicka, Bradley's assistant, commented:

"Apparently a player is a fighter or he isn't, and nothing Steve can do will change his nature. If the present Indians can't show more spirit we'll have to get some players who can."

A couple of changes in the lineup were due today as the Tribe opened a series with the Yankees, but not because of dissatisfaction. Hal Trosky, home run hitting first sacker, was laid on the shelf for a week because of a bruised shin and Billy Sullivan, the clouting young catcher, shifted to first. Bruce Campbell, just recovered from his third attack of spinal meningitis, was due to return to the lineup.

With the deadline for interclub trading past, without any important last-minute developments, the Indians and all other clubs will have to look to the minors for any new material they need. Despite the usual blast of the trade winds just before the June 15 limit, the only recent deals of importance were the swap of Ben Chapman for Jake Powell between the Yankees and Senators and the Boston-Washington trade of Joe Cascarella for Jack Russell.

The Yanks and Senators, both needing pitchers more than outfielders, won't be benefitted materially by their deal but there's a chance Russell will be just what the doctor ordered for the Red Sockers.

LOUIS-SCHMELING GATE ESTIMATES CUT

Over-Confidence Joe Will Win Blamed for Slump in Sale of Tickets.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, June 16—Over-confidence may not affect the ability of Joe Louis to make relatively short work of Max Schmeling in their 15-round heavyweight match in the Yankee stadium this Thursday night but it has struck a blow at the gate receipts.

With the advance sale today going beyond the half-million mark, there is no danger of any of the parties involved losing money, but the "gate" is likely to fall considerably short of the goal of a million.

Even with a belated rush for the box offices the aggregate is unlikely to exceed $750,000, which means that Louis and Schmeling each may have to be satisfied with a paltry $200,000 for their efforts to entertain anywhere from 60,000 to 70,000 onlookers.

Originally Promoter Mike Jacobs scaled the stadium to handle a $1,250,000 house, at $40 top, for the Louis-Schmeling bout. The least of Mike's difficulties involved the disposal of the highest priced tickets. It's the apathy of the $5 and $10 customers that has affected the advance sale.

Less than 50,000 of the available 85,000 tickets have been sold, so that it will require a big rush if the fight is even close to a sell-out.

Primarily the apathy of the cash customers is traced to the belief Schmeling has no more than a Chinaman's chance to halt the sensational winning streak of the Brown Bomber.

*Have postponed games to play.

Lee Street's No. 1 Sunday school league team climbed into undisputed first place by plastering a 13 to 1 defeat on the previously unbeaten Forest Lawn aggregation at President field last night. Both teams have lost only one game, but Forest Lawn, with one postponed conflict on its schedule holds a slightly lower average than Lee Street. In other games last night the Epworth Seniors upset First Reformed, 5 to 2, the Presbyterians defeated St. Mary, 4 to 3, and Trinity scored a final inning victory over Epworth No. 1, 6 to 5.

Four games, one of them a night league contest, are set for softball fans tonight. In Sunday school loop No. 2, Salem will meet St. Mary, Calvary tangles with Christian and the Epworth Bishops play United Brethren. Wesley, the seventh member of the loop, is idle. Tonight's All Star league contest at Lincoln park will match the Marion Steam Shovel and Gasco teams.

Lee Street's big second inning, in which it registered seven runs on a single hit, submerged the hopes of the league-leading Forest Lawn club. Ineffective fielding support behind the pitching of M. Snyder, Forest Lawn's star mound ace, gave the opposing team an opportunity it eagerly took advantage of. Snyder, whose injured thumb probably handicapped him, was relieved in the fourth inning by Converse, who held the winning team to three hits during the remainder of the game. Crabtree allowed the losing squad six hits, one in each inning except the second.

W. Merchant, S. Somerlot and Almendinger engineered a seventh-inning rally for the Trinity Baptists which was responsible for the team's 6 to 5 victory after it had trailed Epworth No. 1, 5 to 4, at the start of the final frame. Both teams had been scoreless until the fifth inning, when Epworth tallied five runs on five hits and Trinity registered four run on four hits. Epworth held the advantage until the winning barrage in the seventh.

The Presbyterians moved into undisputed third place by edging St. Mary, 4 to 3. St Mary's four errors proved costly, and its three runs in the fifth frame fell short of knotting the score.

Although his team was defeated, 5 to 2, Howison, First Reformed catcher, turned in the best batting performance of the game, connecting in all of his four times at bat, once for a triple. Edgington and Wolfe clouted homers and Hero doubled to account for the heavy hits of the opposing Epworth Seniors.

Chaney Wins Open Air Match Against Sauer

Lon Chaney, bombastic Indianapolis mat performer, turned the tables on George Sauer and halted the Nebraskan's rope-walking activity to win one of the two featured bouts on last night's wrestling card at the outdoor arena on Uncapher avenue. Frankie Clemmons of New York City bested Algeria's Black Panther in another bout. The handsome Andy Tremaine of Phoenix, Ariz., grappled to a 20-minute draw with Young Sampson of Ft. Worth, Tex., in the card's opener.

George Sauer, who ignored a jeering crowd irked by his rope clinging activities, protested when Referee Tom Temple awarded the deciding fall to Lon Chaney. After the battlers slammed their way through four minutes of the third fall, Referee Temple called the fall when Chaney pinned the Nebraskan with neck scissor and body press. Tricky Sauer immediately lodged the protest that both shoulders were not on the mat and engaged in no little display of voicing his opinion even after his opponent and the referee had left the ring.

Sauer began his use of the ropes early in the first round when he applied the chin lock and put on the pressure by shoving his feet into the ropes. Referee Temple separated the grapplers frequently as Sauer persisted in using the ropes and refused to make a clean break. Chaney took the first round when Sauer asked for time to tie his shoelace, and stalled for a rest. The Indianapolis warrior shoved Referee Temple to one side, mauled the Nebraskan and took the opening fall in 14 minutes with a hammerlock.

Sauer resorted to his chinlock to weaken Chaney in the second fall and succeeded in taking the round after chin-lifting his opponent to the floor. The Indian deathlock, as applied by Sauer, resulted in Chaney's conceding the fall at the end of six minutes.

The Panther-Clemmons match, clean from start to finish, ended abruptly when the New Yorker was awarded the final fall in four minutes, using a leg hold and body press. The Panther, although not of the opinion that he was legally downed, took the defeat sportingly and shook hands with his opponent before leaving the ring.

The Black Panther brought his aerial shoulder butt into play when he took the second round in 18 minutes to even the match. Clemmons' three body slams and a series of rope catapults convinced the Panther that Clemmons was the best man in the opening melee. The Panther spent most of his time working on his opponent's legs, and on several occasions was near registering a fall with a toe hold. The first round was timed at 20 minutes.

A large crowd of mat fans present at the outdoor exhibition voiced their approval of the clean scrapping in both the Clemmons-Panther scrap and the opening 20-minute bout. Tremaine and Sampson opened their tangle by rolling and tumbling in search of an opportunity for a successful hold, and finished in a draw in precisely the same manner. Sampson's opening toe hold was broken by a neck scissors, which Tremaine administered. The Ft. Worth grappler retaliated with a body scissors, but was slammed to the mat with his opponent's keylock. Both boys scrapped fast and omitted any display of rough stuff.

RED BIRDS DEFEAT KANSAS CITY, 8-3; BREWERS BEAT HENS

St. Paul Wins from Louisville; Indianapolis Wallops Millers, 6-1.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, June 16—The Kansas City Blues are traveling a rough road in this season's American association chase.

For the past few weeks the Blues have been battling the Milwaukee Brewers for the circuit lead. On several occasions, when the Brewers were beaten, the Blues muffed great chances to advance by dropping games to second division clubs.

Yesterday the steadily improving Columbus Red Birds handed Kansas City another beating, 8 to 3, behind the 10-hit pitching of the former major leaguer, Tony Freitas.

St. Paul beat Louisville 4 to 2, taking advantage of Wayne LaMaster's wildness in the second inning, when the Colonel's pitcher walked four men, to score three runs.

Indianapolis checked the champion Minneapolis Millers, 6 to 1, behind the five-hit pitching of Bud Tinning, who bested Ray Kolp in a mound duel. Kolp allowed nine hits.

Milwaukee took undisputed possession of first place with a 3-2 ten-inning victory over the cellar-occupying Toledo Mud Hens in a night contest. The Hens got only five hits.
